

Save 60% off retail price with code AA225 at checkout*

ANTHROPOLOGY
JULY | 232 PP. | 6 x 9 | 8 B/W ILLUS., 1 TABLE
ISBN 978-0-299-33790-2 | CASEBOUND
$79.95 ~~$~~ $30.00

“A fascinating account of the multiple and sometimes perplexing reasons Kenyan students give for burning and seeking to destroy an institution ostensibly designed to help them: the school. A brilliant and gifted writer, Cooper delivers a significant contribution to anthropological studies of politics and development. This book is a must-read for anyone interested in the social and political tensions surrounding school violence in Kenya and anywhere.”

—Amy Stambach, author of Faith in Schools: Religion, Education, and American Evangelicals

Burning Ambition

Education, Arson, and Learning Justice in Kenya

ELIZABETH COOPER

Why do students set their schools on fire?

“A riveting tale of the connection between arson and justice by Kenyan secondary school students. An important tale for our time.” —Kenda Mutongi, author of Matatu: A History of Popular Transportation in Nairobi

Burning Ambition explores how young people learn to understand and influence the workings of power and justice in their society. Since 2008, hundreds of secondary schools across Kenya have been targeted with fire by their students. Through an in-depth study of Kenyan secondary students’ use of arson, Elizabeth Cooper asks why. With insightful ethnographic analysis, she shows that these young students deploy arson as moral punishment for perceived injustices and arson proves an effective tactic in their politics from below.

Drawing from years of research and a rich array of sources, Cooper accounts for how school fires stoke a national conversation about the limited means for ordinary Kenyans, and especially youth, to peacefully influence the governance of their own lives. Further, Cooper argues that Kenyan students’ actions challenge the existing complacency with the globalized agenda of “education for all,” demonstrating that submissive despondency is not the only possible response to the failed promises of education to transform material and social inequalities.

ELIZABETH COOPER is an assistant professor in the School for International Studies at Simon Fraser University and a social anthropologist who conducts research concerning children and youth, inequality, and violence, with a primary focus on Kenya.

1. Call 1.800.621.2736 (Toll-Free/U.S.) or 773.702.7000 (Canada/Int'l) (M–F 9 a.m.–5 p.m. CST/CDT)
2. Order online at <https://uwpress.wisc.edu/books/6109.htm> or press.uchicago.edu/directmail

TERMS: Limited time special offer for individual use only. Orders must be placed direct and fully prepaid (Visa, Mastercard, American Express, check or money order made payable to University of Wisconsin Press). Books are nonreturnable and cannot be resold. Additional tax and shipping charges may apply.

Interested in a desk or exam copy for course use instead? Visit <https://uwpress.wisc.edu/textbooks.html>